PREFACE.

THE following collection of Arms and Lineages is an attempt to ſhow what families belong to the old gentry who were reſident in the County of Warwick before the year 1650. Theſe families for the moſt part bore Arms, ſuch appendages being ever looked upon as an evidence of gentle blood. In very early times, perſons of diſtinction were allowed to aſſume what Arms they pleaſed as military enſigns, and to grant them to their retainers, and they were afterwards adopted as honorable diſtinctions. When, however, they came to be regarded as an evidence of honor and blood, they were eagerly ſought after by all who roſe to places of truſt or became poſſeſſors of property. The aſſumption of Arms at pleaſure was in conſequence forbidden by royal authority as early as the reign of Hen. V., and no one was allowed to bear them unleſs they had them by deſcent or grant. To this end the Kings of Arms were commiſſioned by the Crown to make grants to fit perſons, under the authority of the Earl Marſhal. And in order that none might bear them except thoſe who had them by deſcent or grant, the Kings of Arms were authorized to viſit their reſpective provinces, and to ſummon thoſe who uſed them to give ſatisfactory evidence of their right to do ſo. If the perſons ſummoned on theſe occaſions could eſtabliſh their claim, a record of the family was entered in the Herald's books. Theſe records are preſerved in the Herald's College, and in public and private libraries, and from them moſt of the information in the following pages has been obtained. Perſons bearing Arms by deſcent from the old families ſhould be able to deduce an unbroken Lineage from ſome anceſtor whoſe claim has been allowed by the Heralds, and recorded in theſe documents; and ſuch only have a right to uſe them.

Theſe Viſitations commenced at a very early period,—as early as the reign of Hen. IV., as we find from a note in one of the Harl MS. The entry is as follows: "Viſitacio facta per Mariſchallum de Norroy ult. ann. R. Henrici 4ti., 1412." The regular Viſitations, however, did not begin until early in the ſixteenth century. Thomas Benolt, Clarenceux King of Arms, had a commiſſion granted, 20 Hen. VIII., to viſit the Counties of Glouceſter, Worceſter, Oxford, Wilts, Bucks, and Stafford. After this, the Viſitations were regularly made until the end of the ſeventeenth century, the laſt being that of Southampton made by the Deputies of Sir Henry St. George, Clarenceux, in the year 1686.

The Viſitations of Warwickſhire were as follows:

By Robert Cooke, Cheſter Herald, Deputy for William Hervey, Clarenceux, in 1563.

By Philpot, Somerſet Herald, temp. Jas. I.

By Sampſon Lennard and Auguſtine Vincent, Deputies for William Camden, Clarenceux, in 1619.

By Thomas May, Gregory King, and Henry Dethick, Deputies for Henry St. George, Clarenceux, in 1682–83.

In tranſcribing from the MSS. the old ſpelling has generally been preſerved, and where a variation in the ſpelling occurs, more than one form has been uſed.

A diſtinguiſhing mark is affixed to families who according to Mr. Shirley are of knightly and gentle deſcent, but only to thoſe whoſe preſent repreſentative reſides in Warwickſhire.

An Appendix has been given of ſome families who now live in the County, and bear Arms, but whoſe names do not occur in the older Viſitations of Warwickſhire. Theſe Arms have not been compared with any Heraldic records, but accepted ſimply on the authority of the families which uſe them.

The compiler acknowledges his obligation to the Librarian of Queen's College, Oxford, and alſo of Caius College, Cambridge, and to the various Clergymen in the County who have allowed him free acceſs to the Pariſh Regiſters.

Further information reſpecting any of the families mentioned in this work may be obtained by application to the Rev. F. W. Kittermaster, Meriden, Coventry; the perſons wiſhing ſuch information paying the expenſes of having the Arms copied, and the Lineages tranſcribed; the coſt of the former will be from five to ten ſhillings, that of the latter will depend on the length of the Lineage.
